DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Watanabe (US 2002/0037718 A1).

Regarding claim 1, Watanabe teaches an information processing apparatus and network controller setting method comprising at least one removable protocol module (network controller) and at a first user interface in (see figs. 1-3, page 2 [0018-0022]). The apparatus taught by Watanabe is a general computer, which can be configured as desired, but fails to teach that it could be used for testing purposes. The examiner takes official notice that it's well known to use PC or notebook computer for remote testing of network circuits/elements.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the teaching of Watanabe into any testing computer thus making it possible to test/analyze and take corrective measures if necessary by using inexpensive test analyzers.

Regarding claims 2 and 12-13, Watanabe teaches a controller (module) which is connected to an electronic bus. It's well known to have a controller in the form of a PC card in order to be able to remove and replace them if necessary.

Regarding claims 3-10 and 14-20, Watanabe renders obvious and teaches the claimed subject matter in (see figs. And disclosure).

Regarding claim 11, Watanabe teaches an information processing apparatus and network controller setting method comprising at least one removable protocol module (network controller) and at a first user interface in (see figs. 1-3, page 2 [0018-0022]). The apparatus taught by Watanabe is a general computer, which can be configured as desired, but fails to teach that it could be used for testing purposes. The examiner takes official notice that it's well known to use PC or notebook computer for remote testing of network circuits/elements.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the teaching of Watanabe into any testing computer thus making it possible to test/analyze and take corrective measures if necessary by using inexpensive test analyzers.
